Editor and reviewer comments:

Reviewer #1:

1. The article could benefit from a clearer delineation and definition of the fourteen variables identified as affecting buying decisions. Providing concise descriptions of each variable will enhance the reader's understanding and facilitate the application of these variables in real-world scenarios.
2. It would be valuable to delve deeper into the methodology employed to identify and measure the impact of the fourteen variables on buying decisions. Providing details on the research design, sampling methods, and data collection techniques will bolster the credibility and replicability of the study.
3. To enrich the discussion, consider incorporating a comparative analysis of the factors affecting buying decisions in East Java with those in other regions or countries. This comparative perspective can highlight unique regional aspects and contribute to the generalizability of the findings.
4. The article mentions the discovery of empirical patterns; however, a more thorough discussion of these patterns, along with their implications for the development of strategies, would add depth to the study. Consider providing practical insights and recommendations based on these identified patterns.
5. The article briefly touches on economic and political factors influencing producer decisions. Expanding on these aspects and their specific impacts on the production of engineered wood would enhance the comprehensiveness of the study. Additionally, discussing how these factors interact with each other could provide a more nuanced understanding..

I hope you can make improvements as soon as possible and send the revised article again via this email.

Dear

RR Dyah Eko Setyowati, et al.
Indonesian Business School

Thank you for the team's efforts to make improvements to the article.
Based on the reviewers' considerations, the article has, at some point, increased.
However, the team has to improve on a few more points. Hopefully team are willing to do it.

Please follow the following revision instructions:
#Reviewer 2:

1. The article outlines that fourteen variables have an effect on buying decisions. To strengthen the study's contribution, consider delving deeper into the causal relationships between these variables. Clarifying which variables have a direct impact, and which act as moderating or mediating factors, will provide a more nuanced understanding of their influence on buying decisions.
2. Given the complexity of consumer behavior, it's crucial to consider and discuss potential confounding variables that might affect the identified factors. This acknowledgment will add depth to the analysis and demonstrate a robust understanding of the research context.
3. While the study appears to be largely quantitative, integrating qualitative insights from consumers and producers could offer a more comprehensive understanding of the factors influencing buying decisions. Qualitative data can provide context and rich descriptions, offering a more holistic view of the decision-making process.
4. A thorough discussion of the study's limitations, such as sample size constraints or potential biases, is essential. Additionally, suggesting avenues for future research based on these limitations can guide subsequent studies and contribute to the ongoing discourse in this field.
5. Consider incorporating visual aids such as charts or graphs to present the relationships between the variables more effectively. Visual representations can enhance reader engagement and facilitate a quicker understanding of the complex interplay of factors affecting buying decisions in East Java.

Articles that have been revised and please send them back via this email.
